

Tom Griffin, CEM, CPM, LEED Green Associate Facilities and Engineering Director

Tom Griffin is a 30-year facilities professional with experience in government, corporate facilities and investment properties throughout the U.S.

His early and mid-career experience encompassed management and operation of investment properties for private equity firms and public REITS across the U.S., in 20+ cities including Boston, New York City, Miami, and Los Angeles. Mr. Griffin entered the facilities profession as a property manager, with most of his career as regional Vice President overseeing real estate portfolios in New England, Southeast, Mid-Atlantic and the United Kingdom. His experience in corporate real estate included comprehensive facilities services to Fortune 500 companies - Wells Fargo Bank, HSBC Bank, Fidelity Investments and Hewlett Packard.

Early in his career, after transitioning from active duty, Mr. Griffin balanced his private sector career, while serving in the U.S. Navy Reserve, retiring as a Commander. He has authored numerous facilities industry articles and in 1998 was inducted into the Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM) Academy of Authors.

In 2016, Mr. Griffin joined the federal government with General Services Administration (GSA), where he provided facilities services to numerous federal government agencies across the National Capital Region. September 2020, Tom joined National Defense University as the Facilities and Engineering Director.
