Vice Admiral Jody A. Breckenridge

United States Coast Guard (Retired)

Jody A. Breckenridge serves as the Chair of the California Military Council serving the state, military facilities, military personnel and their families serving in California and Defense Support Communities. As a board member, she serves the following agencies and nonprofits: Association for Rescue at Sea, Council for a Strong America, Marines Memorial Foundation, Mission Readiness: Military Leaders for Kids, Oakland Military Institute, San Francisco Fleet Week Association and U.S. Vets.

Ms. Breckenridge serves on the Board of First Command Financial Services and on the board of the Armed Services YMCA.

A retired three-star, Vice Admiral Breckenridge completed a 34-year career in the United States Coast Guard. In her last assignment as Pacific Area Commander, she served as one of the two senior field commanders, directing all operations across 73 million square miles of the Pacific. Additional flag assignments included Director of Strategic Transformation guiding the largest reorganization and business practice realignment in the modern Coast Guard, Assistant Commandant for Human Resources with responsibility for all the workforces, pay and benefits, healthcare, awards and recognitions, housing, training and education, and Acquisition Official for training and human capital. As the Eleventh District Commander, the regional command achieved record drug interdictions including the arrest of the head of the Arellano Felix cartel. Her initial flag assignment was as Maintenance and Logistics Command Pacific leading all support and logistic systems supporting the Pacific Area Commander. As a flag officer, the Admiral participated in State Department programs in the countries of Georgia and Azerbaijan. She was a US representative for the North Pacific Coast Guard Forum and led meetings with the Russian Border Service.

Vice Admiral Breckenridge earned a Masters in National Security Strategy and Resource Management from ICAF (now the Dwight D Eisenhower School) of the National Defense University and a Masters of Public Policy from the University of Maryland (Honors). She was awarded a BS in Biology from Virginia Tech.

Lieutenant General Charles W. Hooper United States Army (Retired)

Lieutenant General (Retired) Charles Hooper is one of America's most distinguished soldier-diplomats and known as a conceptual and analytical thinker, a consummate negotiator, a trusted advisor who effectively navigates complex, sensitive issues and challenges, and a catalyst for collaboration and cooperation. He is well-known and widely respected within the Departments of State and Defense, the Intelligence Community and among national security scholars.

Lieutenant General Hooper has over 40 years of experience in security policy formulation and execution; strategic intelligence; security cooperation; sensitive negotiations; foreign military sales; education and transformational leadership. A fluent Chinese linguist with almost seven years living and working in China, many considered him one of the Nation's foremost experts on the Chinese military and defense industries.

In addition to operational assignments with the 25th Infantry and 82nd Airborne Divisions and teaching Chinese Foreign Policy at the Naval Postgraduate School, Lieutenant General Hooper had three high profile diplomatic assignments including serving as the U.S. Defense Attaché—the senior U.S. military officer, in both China and Egypt. Lieutenant General Hooper also served as the senior DOD strategist and planner (J5) for U.S. Africa Command and deputy strategy and plans director for U.S. Indo-Pacific Command (Deputy J5), and as the senior China and Taiwan policy official in the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

In his final military assignment (2017-2020), he was Director of the Defense Security Cooperation Agency, responsible for the overseas sale of all weapons, military equipment, support services and training packages for the United States Government. In that capacity he served as the Department of Defense expert on U.S. security assistance funding and U.S. foreign military sales.

Lieutenant General Hooper is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point (BS), and Harvard University Kennedy School of Government (MPA) where he received the Don K. Price Award for Academic Excellence and Public Service. He also holds a certificate in Chinese Language and Literature from the British Ministry of Defense Chinese Language School and returned to Harvard University as a post-graduate research fellow at the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs studying U.S.-China military relations.

Among his numerous honors, Lieutenant General Hooper was awarded the National Defense Medal by the French Government and was the first Army student-officer and first Harvard Kennedy School of Government student ever selected to give a Harvard University Commencement Address.

Lieutenant General Hooper is now a Senior Counselor with The Cohen Group, the Washington, D.C. consulting firm founded by former Secretary of Defense William Cohen. He is also a member of the National Bureau of Asian Research Board of Directors, a Senior Fellow at Harvard University's Belfer Center, a senior non-resident scholar at the Atlantic Council, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Dr. Christopher B. Howard

Lieutenant Colonel, United States Air Force Reserve (Retired)

Dr. Chris Howard is the executive vice president and chief operating officer of Arizona State University (ASU). Howard works closely with President Crow and the other executive vice presidents to coordinate enterprise-wide initiatives and advancement, oversee ASU Enterprise affiliates, advance new enterprise relationships and opportunities, and integrate ASU Enterprise planning and strategy.

He is a distinguished graduate of the US Air Force Academy and earned a doctorate in politics as a Rhodes Scholar from the University of Oxford. He also has an MBA with distinction from Harvard Business School, and in 2018 received the school's Alumni Achievement Award. Howard's service to his country began as a helicopter pilot, then as an intelligence officer, where he was assigned to the elite Joint Special Operations Command. He served in Afghanistan in the Air Force Reserve and was awarded the Bronze Star. Howard concluded his career as a Reserve Military Attaché to Liberia, Africa.

Previously, Howard served as the eighth president of Robert Morris University, a nationally ranked doctoral granting university in suburban Pittsburgh, beginning on February 1, 2016.

Before serving at RMU, Howard was President of Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia.

Howard also served as vice president for Leadership & Strategic Initiatives at the University of Oklahoma. Previously he worked in General Electric's Corporate Initiatives Group and Bristol-Myers Squibb's Corporate Associates Program. Howard served on the National Security Education Board, appointed by President Barack Obama.

He is a trustee on the Harvard University Board of Overseers and also serves on the Board of Directors of AvalonBay Communities. Howard is a Henry Crown Fellow at the Aspen Institute, a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Young Presidents Organization, the Aspen Strategy Group and Trilateral Commission, and Sigma Pi Phi, the oldest African-American fraternity in the United States.

Howard won the Campbell Trophy, the nation's highest academic award for a senior college football player. He also is a member of the Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics and a former member of the College Football Playoff Selection Committee.

Howard is the founder and a trustee emeritus of the Impact Young Lives Foundation, a nonprofit organization that supports South African youth.

His wife, Barbara Noble Howard, serves as an Arizona State University Fellow for nonprofit leadership. She also serves on several philanthropic boards and hails from South Africa. They have two adult sons, Cohen and Joshua.

Dr. Suzanne Logan

Dr. Suzanne Logan is providing independent consulting/coaching services after retiring in 2022 from the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) where she was a member of the Senior Executive Service—most recently as the Senior Advisor for the Associate Director, Employee Services but for the prior nine years as Director of the Federal Executive Institute, the Director of the Center for Leadership Development (CLD) and the Deputy Associate Director of Human Resources Solutions. Operating within a yearly revolving-fund budget of over $180M, she successfully led all aspects of the U.S. government’s career-long professional leadership and management development programs. CLD’s Continuum of Leadership and Professional Development, created by Dr. Logan, was delivered through FEI, the two management development centers in Washington, D.C. and Denver, Colorado, the SES Leading EDGE program, USALearning, OPM’s Innovation Design Lab, the Presidential Management Fellows program, the Presidential Executive Fellows program, the International Leadership Development program, Performance and Process Improvement program, and the Federal HR Institute. Each year under her leadership over 18 million development courses or programs were completed by the Federal workforce through these courses or programs.

Before joining FEI, Dr. Logan served as the U.S. Air Force’s Chief Academic Officer for Officer Education, Spaatz Center and the Chief Academic Officer, Air War College at Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama. She served on the J7 JPME educational advisory group, participated in updates to the CJCSI 1800 and led or participated in the joint accreditation processes of war colleges and staff colleges each year.

While working in private industry, Dr. Logan was Vice President of Academic Affairs for class.com, a private company formed by the University of Nebraska, where she held responsibilities for the development and delivery of a completely Internet-based worldwide academic program. Earlier, she served as a Regional Manager for Texas Instruments, Inc. where she developed training programs and oversaw the training for one-third of the country.

A seventeen-year academic administrator at Texas Tech University (TTU) and a member of the graduate faculty, Dr. Logan was the guiding force behind several groundbreaking academic initiatives, including the first virtual public school district in Texas, the university’s first online Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees, and the largest kindergarten through Master’s degree e-learning program in the country. She was one of the first members of Texas Tech’s graduate faculty to teach courses using interactive video instruction and was the first to teach online courses over the worldwide web. She led the TTU to international prominence as a pacesetter in e-learning. Dr. Logan served regularly for over a decade as a peer consultant for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the Middle States Association during her university tenure and again while serving at Air University.

The Honorable Timothy J. Roemer

Tim Roemer, former U.S. Member of Congress, 9/11 Commissioner, and U.S. Ambassador to India, is Executive Director and Strategic Counselor at APCO Worldwide. He works with clients on government relations and provides strategic advice. With his background in international trade, education policy, and national security, Ambassador Roemer is a trusted consensus-builder, problem solver and international expert.

In 2009, he was appointed by President Obama to serve as U.S. Ambassador to India, one of America's largest diplomatic missions. During his time in office, Ambassador Roemer helped move India from being America's 25th largest trading partner to 12th. He oversaw the signing of the Counterterrorism Cooperation Initiative, which broadened U.S. – India coordination in intelligence, homeland security, border security, money laundering, and terrorist financing. He worked with the U.S. Government to assist India on the Global Center for Nuclear Energy Partnership. Ambassador Roemer strengthened U.S. cooperation with India in technology transfers and sales in the defense and space industries.

Ambassador Roemer was an early endorser of President Obama and President Biden and actively supported both successful campaigns. He has participated regularly in TV interviews with CNN, MSNBC, Bloomberg News, NDTV, IndiaToday, CNBC, Voice of America, and other outlets in which he has spoken on U.S. political issues and international relations. He has contributed numerous articles and op-eds to the Washington Post, New York Times, Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and South Bend Tribune on domestic and international issues.

Earlier, Ambassador Roemer proudly served for 12 years in the United States Congress as Representative for Indiana's 3rd Congressional District. Coming from a family of educators, he fought to improve access, standards, and achievement for American education. He was known for his bipartisan work on getting laws passed and for his insights on the Intelligence Committee. Ambassador Roemer was appointed to serve on the 9/11 Commission and helped pass the Commission's recommendations into law. Later, he was a member of the Washington Institute for Near East Policy's Presidential Task Force on Combating the Ideology of Radical Extremism, the 21st Century National Parks Commission, the Commission on the Prevention of Weapons of Mass Destruction Proliferation and Terrorism, and the 9/11 FBI Review Commission.

Ambassador Roemer is a member of the Aspen Institute's US-India Strategic Dialogue, and a board member of the US India Strategic Partnership Forum (<https://usispf.org/>). He is also a strategic adviser to Issue One (<https://issueone.org/>), a non-profit organization working on a bipartisan basis to address safe-guarding and strengthening our democracy. He has traveled around the country to speak on this issue at conferences and public venues. From 2018 to 2021, he has participated in annual U.S.-China Track II Strategic Dialogues, at which leading U.S. and Chinese experts discuss political and economic issues of critical importance to the bilateral relationship.
