NATIONAL DEFENSE UNIVERSITY

The National Defense University (NDU) generates strategic warfighting advantage for the Nation by educating U.S. military, interagency, international, and private sector leaders in joint warfighting, strategy, and leadership. In the year of our 50th Anniversary, we remain committed to preparing U.S. leaders to outthink, out-decide, and outfight our adversaries by creating the asymmetric, cognitive edge necessary to preserve the peace, respond in crisis, and win decisively in war. We do not educate for the sake of education, we educate to guarantee national security; more directly, in order to fight and win.

Unlike many civilian universities, NDU provides mastery-focused education, requiring students to demonstrate the targeted level of competence before they move on to new material. Admission confers opportunity, not entitlement. This approach creates within NDU an environment where only sustained, demonstrated excellence merits graduation, making selectivity both an entry condition and an enduring expectation. NDU's geographic location, at the heart of the Nation's Capital, makes it a premier platform for strategic engagement, benefiting the Executive and Legislative Branches, industry, and society.

VISION

The National Defense University is the Nation's warfighting intellectual center of gravity delivering education, research, industry collaboration, and allied and partner engagement.

MISSION

The National Defense University educates to provide the warfighting advantage necessary to win in competition, crisis, and conflict.

NDU's individual components are designed to address specific national security requirements forming together a unique, holistic environment for national security education:

The College of Information & Cyberspace (CIC): equips graduates to compete, operate, and prevail in the cyber domain and information environment, which are under persistent attack from the PRC, Russia, the DPRK, Iran, and non-state adversaries. Our programs give students the intellectual and informational edge required for the United States and its partners to win.

The College of International Security Affairs (CISA): is the University's Irregular Warfare College offers programs at Fort McNair and Fort Bragg. CISA's graduates are equipped to address violent struggles for legitimacy and influence, countering terrorism and transnational criminal networks, and prevail across the continuum of competition and war.

The Eisenhower School (ES): educates students to resolve one of the most urgent national security vulnerabilities: erosion of U.S. industrial capacity. America's defense industrial base remains costly, slow, and constrained. Munitions stockpiles are limited and surge capacity is insufficient. Students are prepared to reverse these trends, and ES uniquely convenes executive branch agencies, Congress, and industry to put in place lasting solutions.

The Joint Forces Staff College (JFSC): prepares graduates to lead at the Joint Force Headquarters level, from the seabed to cislunar space. Students learn to integrate joint and combined capabilities to overwhelm adversaries, as well as their decision-making and ability to respond.

The National War College (NWC): prepares graduates to be uniquely educated critical thinkers with the skills to integrate the military with other instruments of power (diplomacy, information, and economic tools) and to achieve national goals in peace, crisis, and war.

The National Intelligence College (NIC): forges graduates who can ensure the United States maintains an intelligence advantage over its adversaries. Students are educated in providing government leaders with timely, penetrating, and actionable intelligence necessary to outcompete and win in conflict.

CAPSTONE (encompassing Capstone, Keystone, and Pinnacle): prepares general and flag officers, senior enlisted, and senior executives for the responsibilities of executive leadership, where their decisions will shape national policy and government actions.

The Institute for National Strategic Studies (INSS): provides the Department of War with applied, cutting-edge research, rigorous analyses, and wargaming exercises on priority national security issues. INSS shapes strategy, informs decisions, and mitigates risk to ensure the United States can fight and win.
